Watch What They Do, Not What They Say

Tax collectors were really hated and despised in Jesus’ time. Yet Jesus says in this week’s Gospel that they will enter the kingdom of God before the chief priests and elders of the people. Why were they given first place in the Kingdom?

Jesus sees in them the willingness to believe the message of mercy that He is proclaiming. They are open; they believe that another life is possible; they believe in his message of love, inclusion, and mercy for all.

The chief priests and the elders were instead too busy making sure that only the righteous, in their eyes, were the elected ones. In other words, they were too busy excluding people, dividing the worthy from the unworthy, using very superficial parameters.

Jesus, in asking their opinion on the behavior of the brothers, is helping them to realize that it was not the one who said the right things who followed the will of the Father. The second son, in fact, said all the right things in front of the Father but his actions did not follow his words.

In our day-to-day life we too are surrounded, even drowned in words. We wonder whom to believe anymore. The internet has made it so easy for all of us to be fooled by words and noise. In these months of heated campaigning by both political parties. I wonder if we as a nation have the capacity to quiet the noise and discern whom to believe, who is really planning to do good for the people and the nation, or if words used on a single issue are going to be fooling us, knowing that they will not be followed up with actions.

“Watch what they do, not what they say” is advice I try to follow, not only now, but in life in general. Paul’s words in the letter to the Philippians have given me today the yardstick I will use in these troubled times as I discern about a leader for our nation:

“Do nothing out of selfishness or out of vainglory.
Rather, humbly regard others as more important than yourselves,
Each looking out not for his own interests,
But also for those of others.”

At the end of my days I would rather be in the company of the tax collector!

Horrific Anti-Life Allegations Coming From Georgia ICE Detention Center

Last week, news of forced sterilizations and “jarring medical neglect” at Irwin County Detention Center (ICDC) in Georgia caused outrage among the faith community.

The testimony by Dawn Wooten, a nurse at the facility turned whistleblower, confirmed what detained immigrants have been reporting for years. A harsh spotlight has been thrown on the abhorrent past neglect of detainees as these facilities now deal with Covid-19 by refusing to administer protective equipment and falsifying records in order to underreport cases.

This statement was released in response by the Interfaith Immigration Coalition, of which FAN is an active member. The demands are to cut funding for unjust immigrant detention and a meaningful investigation into the claims of medical abuse and neglect.
Celebrate the International Day of Peace With These Partners

The Catholic Nonviolence Initiative is excited this week to celebrate the first annual Catholic Nonviolence Days of Action. Click here to see a list of events inviting everyone to pray, study, act and celebrate the power of nonviolence during the week.

The Franciscan Peace Center in Clinton, Iowa reconfigured their traditional International Day of Peace celebrations into a virtual walk across the USA. Individuals from each state across the country were recruited and asked to record themselves walking and talking about a wish for peace in their state. The individual videos were edited together into a 13-minute project. Watch the completed project today, Monday, September 21st at the Clinton Franciscans Website.

Additionally, the Washington Interfaith Peace and Security Working Group and the General Board of Church and Society, UMC will host a virtual Interfaith International Day of Peace Service online this Wednesday, September 23rd at noon EST. New Website Offers Comprehensive View of Southern Border Region

Our friends at the Southern Border Communities Coalition (SBCC) have introduced an interactive webpage recently launched as a resource for researchers, policy makers, media, and others that aggregates the latest data & stories on key border issues.

From the website:
For too long border issues have been framed by people who don't live in our region and by politicians who have used anti-immigrant sentiments for their own political gain at our expense. The truth is the southern border region is one of the most diverse, economically vibrant, and safest areas of the country.

If you are looking for on-the-ground information on issues like the environment, the border wall, the actions of border patrol agents, demographics and more, look no further than SBCC's Border Lens.
Voter Registration Day and Statement of Principles for Voters

There are less than 2 months until the election. Every American can do something to help voters access the information they need to successfully participate in democracy.

Tomorrow, September 22nd is voter registration day and many of our partner organizations are working hard to ensure that every eligible American is registered to vote and has a plan to cast their ballot this November. We invite our members and friends to make a meaningful impact on our democracy by reaching out to 3 friends or family members you think might not be registered -- maybe they just turned 18, recently moved, or have never participated in the political process before. Urge them to check their voter registration now by clicking here.

Pax Christi USA has released this “Statement of Principles” in the context of the 2020 U.S. elections as a resource to inform the decisions that all people will make, urging "we elect leaders with the values, character and integrity required to serve our communities."

For more information, we recommend Vote411.org which has a host of information on each specific states’ registration, polling places, and more!

Take Action Today for Refugee Resettlement

The Trump Administration is currently preparing to set the goal for the number of refugees that will be allowed to be admitted to the United States for the coming fiscal year.

As Christians, we recognize the inherent dignity of each person, and hear the call of Jesus, who was part of a refugee family, to welcome immigrants and refugees. Refugees have contributed greatly to our communities and continue to do so as essential workers in the healthcare field and food supply chain. We invite our members and friends to advocate for refugee resettlement in these two ways:

Use this action alert developed by the Justice for Immigrants (JFI) campaign of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops to urge your Members of Congress to promote refugee resettlement.

Use the resources in this toolkit developed by Interfaith Immigration Coalition to further advocate for a comprehensive COVID-19 relief bill that includes relief and protection for immigrants, including undocumented immigrants, refugees, asylum seekers, Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) recipients, and Temporary Protected Status (TPS) holders.

Celebrating Hispanic Heritage: A Latino Devotional

Bread for the World released a bilingual devotional in celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month entitled Finding Hope, Ending Hunger on Both Sides of the Border.

From Bread for the World:

This devotional celebrates the hope, faith, and resilience of Latino communities, while also lamenting the evil of inequitable policies that, to this day, continue to oppress our people leading to hunger and poverty in the United States and south of the U.S.-Mexico border — even further exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic.
